A WORD FROM OUR SPONSORS

I'm sure you're glad to see us up and running today; we're happy to be here ourselves. Please excuse any slowdowns or system errors you run into; we're still pressing out the glitches since our crash. Don't be alarmed—we've survived bombings, viruses and even the Crash of '29 and the Awakening, so we're sure to survive the current corp war.

NOVA-HOT?

Richard Villiers' new corp is gaining ground, and Fuchi is sucking his exhaust. Novatech now has seats on the Corporate Court, the Manhattan Inc. Consortium and Seattle's United Corporate Council. Rumor is that Richie's ex-wife Samantha sold her Fuchi stock to Yamana, giving him control in exchange for a truce. Will it last? Will Fuchi survive? Will Novatech crash? You tell us.

MYSTIC JOURNEY

In the midst of corporate craziness, Renraku CEO Inazo Aneki has abandoned ship, citing "pressing personal issues." Aneki received word that he's been summoned to Tibet. Is this a legacy from the Big Wyrn, whose gift of the Seal of Green Gloves allows Aneki to pass Tibet's Veil, or a sign of future activity from the land of mystery?

BACKLASH

The newly opened offices of the Astral Space Preservation Society in Chicago have been trashed by virulent opponents of rights for spirits and other Awakened creatures. Humanis and other hate groups successfully used the bug situation to whip up anger and hysteria, steering a mob of crazies to wreck the site. Numerous protesters were injured by guardian spirits and magic, creating further uproar. Click here for details.

WAR GAMES

The otaku—the "Children of the Matrix"—are butting virtual and meat heads in certain places. Various tribes seem to be engaging in "religious disputes," and they've already trashed several hosts and squats with their fighting. Will the brawl escalate, and what does that mean for the rest of us netheads?
